AUTUMN WINTER 2017

Lulu Guinness

Lulu Guinness was founded in 1989, when its' then 29 year old creative director and founder created a forward-thinking briefcase for women. Since the company's conception, Lulu Guinness' intention has always been to be slightly outré and push boundaries.

The brand's creations are regularly seen on the arms of trailblazing women, such as Kate Moss, Fearnie Cotton, Emma Watson, Poppy Delevigne, Paloma Faith and Dita Von Teese. They are women with a fierce sense of humour and an even fiercer sense of their own femininity, who dare to venture outside the parameters set by a predominantly trend led fashion industry.

The brand's sophisticated silhouettes, humorous embellishments and adventurous accessories have become cult favourites around the globe. The central motif, the distinctive Dali-esque lips clutch, remains the brand's staple accessory, transporting the Surrealist art movement into mainstream popular culture.

A number of iconic designs have surpassed the role of mere fashion accessories and been described as works of art, as well as 'tomorrow's treasures'.

The Florist Basket, which caught the eye of Madonna, became part of the permanent fashion collection at the Victoria and Albert Museum, London, and has also been exhibited in Sotheby's London and New York.

Today the brand still abides by the motto 'Dare to Be Different' - said by one of its heroes, the Surrealist couturier and fashion designer Elsa Schiaparelli - and the women who wear Lulu Guinness do just that.

Critical acclaim and praise over the years has cemented leading stores in London and paved the way for shops as far as Asia and the United Arab Emirates.

Desire for Lulu Guinness has also seen designs sold on the shelves of the most prestigious department stores, including Selfridges, Harrods and Harvey Nichols in the UK, Luisa Via Roma in Italy, AlterStyle in Shanghai and Galleries Lafayette in Beijing.

Creative Director Lulu was awarded an OBE from the Queen in 2006 and was awarded The Independent Handbag Designer Awards ICONOCLAST Award for Lifetime Achievement in Handbag Design in 2009.

She also received an Honorary Doctorate by The University of the Arts London in 2012.
